agencies established for clients with other legal issues.

02/06/1989 to 04/18/1994 Los Angeles County Public Defender

- Transfer to Alternate Public Defender

As a Deputy Public Defender for both offices, cases included representation of indigent individuals charged with misdemeanors and felonies ranging from petty theft, drug possession, assault, robbery, sexual assault, and murder that included conducting numerous jury and court trials. Notable case is People v. Noriega, et al.; female client charged with a capital homicide for which LA District Attorney chose to seek the death penalty against her and two co-defendants; jurors deadlocked 9 to 3 in favor of death for the client; subsequently the prosecutor opted for life in prison without parole. The case resulted in a law that prohibits law enforcement from using minors as informants.
